

Deferment and Forbearance

Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP) Loans

What are deferment and forbearance?

There are a number of circumstances in which you may need or want to postpone repayment of your Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP) loans. FFELP loans include the Federal Stafford, Federal PLUS, and Federal Consolidation Loans. For example, if you are currently in school, completing a medical or dental residency, temporarily unemployed or disabled, or experiencing economic hardship, you may be eligible for a deferment or a forbearance, which will enable you to postpone or temporarily reduce your loan payments.

How do I get a deferment or forbearance?

Contact your loan holder/servicer to request a deferment or forbearance.

Deferment of FFELP Loans

Deferment is a period of time during which you can postpone your loan payments. Deferments are an entitlement that your federal loan holder/servicer must approve if you meet the requirements as specified in the promissory note and provide the necessary documentation to the loan holder/servicer. Eligibility for deferments depends on the type of loan being deferred and the date on which you received your first FFELP loan (see Figure 1). If you borrowed your first FFELP loan on or after July 1, 1993, you are entitled to a deferment on those loans if you meet one of the following criteria:

- At least half-time enrollment as a student in an eligible degree or certificate program
- · Full-time enrollment in an eligible graduate fellowship program
- Enrollment in an approved rehabilitation training program
- Seeking to find (and unable to find) full-time employment (up to three years)
- · Economic hardship as determined by federal law (up to three years)

Note: Additional deferments may be available if at the time you obtained your loan, you had an outstanding balance on a FFELP loan that was borrowed prior to July 1, 1993. See the table on the second page of this document.

Interest on Federal Stafford Loans is subsidized during periods of deferment for loans that were subsidized during the in-school period.

Forbearance of FFELP Loans

Forbearance is an agreement between you and your loan holder/servicer that allows for:

- · Temporary postponement of payments,
- · Extension of time for making payments, or
- Temporary acceptance of payments that are smaller than required by the repayment schedule.

Situations in which you might be eligible for a forbearance on your Federal Stafford, Federal PLUS, and Federal Consolidation Loans are provided in Figure 2. Typically, borrowers who qualify for forbearance are willing to make payments, but are financially unable to do so. In addition, the loan holder/servicer is required to grant a mandatory forbearance on a Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) if you satisfy any of the following conditions:

- You are participating in a medical or dental internship or residency program.
- Your monthly Title IV federal student loan payments are collectively equal to or greater than 20% of your total monthly income (mandatory forbearance available in 12-month increments for up to three years).
- You are serving in a national service position for which you received a national service education award under the National and Community Service Trust Act of 1993 (AmeriCorps).
- You are eligible for partial repayment of a loan under the Student Loan Repayment Programs administered by the Department of Defense under 10 U.S.C. 2171.
- You are eligible for the Teacher Loan Forgiveness Program and meet all annual requirements.
- You perform services that would qualify you for forgiveness under the Child Provider Loan Forgiveness Program.

Interest accrues during forbearance regardless of whether the loan was subsidized or not during the in-school period. This interest can be paid as it accrues or it can be capitalized at the end of the forbearance. You must reapply for forbearance at least once each year to re-certify your eligibility.

Contact your loan holder/servicer for more information, to check your eligibility for a deferment or forbearance, to reapply for forbearance, or to obtain the appropriate forms for requesting a deferment or forbearance on a federal student loan.
